Dear Colleagues:

I hope that you’ve all had a great start to the new school year. This is always an exciting time of year as we look forward to another group of students and a new set of experiences—hopefully they will all be good ones!

I want to thank all of you for helping to make our 2013 Summer Conference such a success. We tried a new venue this year at the Hyatt and although there were a few challenges with parking, the feedback we received was positive. Our keynote speakers were outstanding. Dr. Yong Zhao provided many thought-provoking ideas and inspired attendees to foster the creativity and entrepreneur spirit of their students. It was a good reminder to us that what makes our country a leader in innovation is the freedom to think critically and the freedom to be creative in how we think and what we do ---- and it is not how we’ve done on standardized tests. These are the qualities in our education system that are admired by other countries. It was interesting to hear Dr. Zhao say that students in other countries may outscore our students in science and math, but they do not have the passion for these subjects that many of our students do have. When it’s all said and done, if students don’t have passion for what they’re learning and teachers don’t have passion for what they’re teaching, then we are all wasting our time. As educational leaders I encourage you to challenge your staff to ignite that passion for learning in all of our students.

Darrell Scott from Rachel’s Challenge made all of us think a little more about the importance of treating each other with kindness. I believe his message was that promoting kindness will do more to keep our kids safe and prevent bullying than will any program, punishment or deterrent. Keynote presentations can be accessed on You Tube via icon on website.

You may have noticed that we are making the transition to our new name: The New Mexico Coalition of Educational Leaders and our new motto, Keeping Kids First. We are transitioning to our new website and email changes for the organization are forthcoming. This is the second time that the Coalition has undergone a name change. The organization began more than 40 years ago as a Superintendents’ organization. Later it was revised to be more inclusive of other leaders and the name was changed to NM Coalition of School Administrators. The job of school administrator is so much more than that of a manager. All of you truly are the educational leaders of the state and we are proud to represent you as such. In addition we’ve had changes to our leadership. Dr. Crit Caton, superintendent in Artesia and former...
A Message From the President

Another summer is officially in the books. Welcome to the 2013-2014 school year. We know many of you attended in-service trainings over the past few months, and we truly appreciate those who were able to attend the “New Mexico Coalition of Educational Leaders” (NMCEL) summer conference. Hopefully, many of you were able to glean some valuable information that will assist you in the coming year.

Along with our new “brand”, we are excited about the changes taking place within our organization and are looking forward to serving New Mexico’s leaders.

As educators, we were fortunate this year to see a $144 increase in the unit value and a 1% increase in funding to all public education employees statewide. These increases were greatly appreciated and a welcome sight for those who haven’t received a raise in the past five years. Nevertheless, with the rise in funding has come a rise in accountability, and there are still many challenges that educators will face over the next year — Implementation of Common Core State Standards, End of Course Exams, PARCC Assessments, and the New Teacher/Principal Evaluation System. In the face of these changes, we are amazed at the steadfast resolve our leaders possess.

It is an honor for me to serve as President of this organization and to assist our amazing NMCEL staff in “Keeping Kids First”. If you have suggestions, concerns, or need clarification on any educational issues, please let us know. We look forward to serving you and extend best wishes for a successful and fulfilling school year!

Sincerely,

Crit D. Caton, Ed.D.

Ready or Not: Next Generation Assessments

Sue Gendron, Senior Fellow, International Center for Leadership in Education and Policy Coordinator, Smarter Balanced Assessment Consortium

Susan A. Gendron served as Commissioner of Education for the state of Maine from March 13, 2003 until May 1, 2010 when she stepped down to assume the role of Policy Coordinator for the SMARTER Balance Assessment Consortium. In this role she assisted 31 states in preparing an innovative integrated proposal that is built upon an integrated balanced system for curriculum, assessment, instruction and educator development. In her role at the International Center, Sue leads a team of former state commissioners/superintendents to provide coaching and executive training and support to state education leaders and their staffs. She also leads the International Center’s consulting services to local districts and state education departments for development of comprehensive assessment systems and 21st century-based technology plans.

Dr. Veronica C. Garcia

Dr. Veronica C. Garcia has dedicated her life to education. She has been an educator and child advocate in New Mexico for 40 years, and has experience as a Teacher, Principal, Associate Superintendent and Superintendent. Dr. Garcia served as Superintendent for Santa Fe Public Schools in a time of turbulence and led the district to a state of stability, both financially and academically. The district went from a deficit to a $4.7 million cash balance. After her retirement from Santa Fe in 2001, she was hired to serve as the Executive Director of the New Mexico Coalition of School Administrators.

Dr. Garcia is best known for her tenure as New Mexico’s first Cabinet Secretary of Education from 2003-2010, during which time she worked with the Governor to address the unique needs of New Mexico students through the statewide initiative, Making Schools Work. Under this initiative, she implemented a reform agenda targeting academic rigor and accountability, closing the achievement gap, school readiness, quality teachers, parent and community involvement, 21st century classrooms and college and workforce readiness. Along with advocating for the passage of the New Mexico’s Pre-K Act, Dr. Garcia pushed for funding for several programs, i.e. school-based health clinics, breakfast in the schools, elementary physical education and Kindergarten Plus. She was a strong advocate for the passage of the Hispanic Education Act.

Dr. Garcia was hired to serve as Executive Director of New Mexico Voices for Children in April 2012. Her vast experience and dynamic leadership were cited as reasons NM Voices selected her to continue the mission of working to eradicate poverty and to support policies that ensure children and their families have an improved quality of life. Dr. Garcia states: “...I’ve always believed that education is a social justice issue.”

Dr. Garcia serves on several statewide boards and continues to serve on national boards impacting the health, education, and economic well-being of children, including advising U.S. Secretaries of Education Spelling and Duncan. She has received numerous awards and recognition including the National Governors Association Award for Distinguished Service to State Government, the Lifetime Achievement Award from Hispanic Magazine and the Lifetime Achievement Awards from NM PTA, Excellence in Education Award, and is listed as the Top Ten Hispanic Women in New Mexico by the NM Legislature. The New Mexico School Superintendents’ Association named her “Superintendent of the Year” in 2001. Dr. Garcia is an outstanding role model and continues to work toward educational excellence in New Mexico.

H. Russell Goff

H. Russell Goff retired in 2001 after a long and successful career with Albuquerque Public Schools. He served as teacher, coach, Activities Director, Assistant Principal, and Principal. In 2002 he became the Executive Director of the New Mexico Association of Educational Retirees and has worked tirelessly to promote the professional, economic, intellectual, social, and well-being of its members. Through Mr. Goff’s knowledge and dedication for improved retirement benefits for all educational retirees, important legislation was passed to create a solvency plan. Mr. Goff has also served as a lobbyist for NMAER and has served on several committees during his career. Mr. Goff has received many distinguished awards and is involved in several community service projects.
2013 Administrators of the Year

Each year during the NMCEL summer conference in July, each state professional Affiliate is given the opportunity to recognize their Administrator of the Year. Congratulations to this year’s award recipients. We thank them for their dedication and commitment to education and the children of New Mexico.

Susan Robinson
Business Manager
Maxwell Schools

Susan Robinson has been employed with the Maxwell School District for eight years. She oversees an annual budget of $1.5 million for the staff and the 108 students attending the schools. Ms. Robinson is described by her Superintendent as a friendly and most efficient business manager with whom he has worked in the years as an educator. The Maxwell School Board trusts her direction and decisions.

Joyce Rock
Principal
Central Consolidated Schools

Joyce Rock never anticipated being a high school principal. In fact, she is the first in her family to ever attend college. Growing up her family moved often and by the time she dropped out of school in the 11th grade Ms. Rock had attended 17 schools in four different states. Ms. Rock states that getting a college education and having the adventures in education that she has experienced was either an accident or divine intervention.
Congratulations

NMSTE Administrator of the Year

Nathan Holmes
Director of Technology
Aztec Municipal Schools

Nathan Holmes is a technology leader with classroom success in mind. Mr. Holmes manages to keep teachers interested in technology, keeps the district technology intact and provides professional development to district and site technicians. Mr. Holmes is recognized as an outstanding leader who helps teachers with computer problems, designed the network to work throughout the district, and does this in a caring manner for all students and staff.

Diane Sandoval
Retired Special Education Director
Dexter Consolidated Schools

Diane Sandoval decided early in her career that she wanted to make a difference in children’s lives and thus launched her career in special education. Her varied work experience prepared her for her current role as Director. Ms. Sandoval has always worked to do what is best for students, advice she received from a mentor. Thus, this has been her focus throughout her career.

Principal
Clayton Municipal Schools
Kitty Martin began her administrative career as Director of Federal and State Programs for Magdalena Municipal Schools in 1999. She was Principal of Magdalena Elementary School from 2002-2012 and is currently the Principal of Kiser Elementary in Clayton, NM. Prior to 1999 she was the grant writer and program manager for the Magdalena schools and taught high school English. Ms. Martin was selected by Fulbright Educational Seminars to participate in the Argentina Administrator Exchange program in 2010, and was recognized by the New Mexico Association of Elementary Principals as Southwest Region Principal of the Year in 2008. Ms. Martin, a native New Mexican, is a product of New Mexico’s public education system, holding degrees from NMSU and UNM.

Kirk Carpenter
Superintendent
Aztec Municipal Schools
Kirk Carpenter has served as Superintendent of the Aztec Municipal Schools for the past three years. His focus is success for all students and teachers and improved student achievement. He also works at the state level to carry out this message. Mr. Carpenter has devoted much of his work and time to the Region I superintendents, the superintendents’ organization, and the teachers of New Mexico. He serves on the NMTEACH Task Force and is viewed by his colleagues as an expert of the new Teacher Evaluation Plan. Mr. Carpenter serves on the San Juan County Safe Communities Committee and meets with the College President monthly to discuss partnerships and improved education.

Expertise you can trust. The rewarding relationship you deserve.

Special Olympics New Mexico Unified Sports Options for the US DOE Sports Equity Mandate

Special Olympics of New Mexico (SONM) is fully committed to providing the necessary resources to assist school systems throughout the state develop and implement innovative programs that comply with the spirit and intent of the US Department of Education Sports Equity Law.

The US Department of Education has created guidelines around Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 which requires K-12 school districts to provide a qualified student with a disability an opportunity to benefit from the district’s extracurricular athletics equal to that of students without disabilities. SONM works with school systems, administrators, schools and students to fulfill the guidelines laid out by the Department of Education.

The guidance aims not just to protect rights but to promote unity. SONM has several established programs that are easy to implement in schools and can be tailored to fit the needs and goals of the individual school — Unified Sports (Competitive); Unified Sports Player Development; Unified Sports Recreation. Las Cruces – Friday, September 13

There’s no denying it—the assessment landscape is changing. Nationwide, district leaders are adopting new types of Common Core interim assessments that incorporate the latest testing methods to reduce test time, minimize costs, and improve student outcomes.

At this forum, you’ll learn ways to:
- Reduce your test-administration costs significantly
- Cut test-taking time in half
- Inform and drive differentiated instruction
- Acquire more frequent data points to better inform intervention
- Accomplish all this without sacrificing reliability and validity of test results

Don’t miss this opportunity to find out all about the shift in assessment and why districts across the country are moving to the latest Common Core assessment methods for their interim benchmark needs.

Supervision for Learning: Effectiveness, Evidence, and Evaluation for Principal Leaders

Kim Marshall began his career in 1969 teaching sixth graders in a Boston middle school. He used “learning stations” with some success, wrote curriculum materials for his students gave workshops for teachers in the Boston area, and began to write articles on classroom and school innovation (see list below).

During Boston’s desegregation crisis in the mid-1970’s, Kim became increasingly involved in school wide change efforts, delved into the new research on effective urban schools, and eventually went to graduate school for a year to prepare to become a principal.

But a 1980 Massachusetts tax-cutting referendum closed 22 Boston schools, and Kim found himself in the district’s central office, first as a policy advisor and speechwriter for Superintendent Robert Spillane, then leading a team that wrote new curriculum objectives for the district, and finally serving as director of curriculum and planning.

In 1987, Kim finally got his wish and was made a principal. As leader of the Matter Elementary School for the next 15 years, Kim and his colleagues brought about significant improvements in student achievement, teacher effectiveness, and the quality of the curriculum.

Kim now works for New Leaders for New Schools (www.nlns.org), a non-profit that recruits, trains, and supports urban principals. Kim coaches new principals in New York City with a special focus on improving teacher supervision and evaluation and the effective implementation of interim assessments. He also gives workshops and courses to aspiring and practicing school leaders in a number of venues.

Kim and his wife, Rhoda Schneider, have two children: a daughter teaching English in a Boston high school and a son teaching history in a high school in the San Francisco Bay area.

Attention New Mexico Teachers, Administrators and Social Workers

IDENTIFY, STOP AND PREVENT BULLYING

New Mexico Human Rights Projects (nmhrp.org), a nonprofit organization bringing successful programs to teachers and students since 1995 addressing the importance of respecting differences, is proud to offer another dynamic professional development training for teachers and administrators.

Mike Dreiblatt president of Stand Up To Bullying and an outstanding national speaker will present a dynamic, practical workshop that will engage and empower attendees to replace bullying with more appropriate behavior.

A former teacher, Mike taught for 16 years in New York City and Vermont. He is an expert in bullying and violence prevention, teaching best practices and realistic strategies that can be used immediately.

Some interesting statistics:

- 23% of students in grades 4-5 had been bullied "several times" or more; 20% had bullied others.

- 17% of students in grades 6-10 reported having been bullied "sometimes" or more, with 8% being bullied once a week. 19 percent said they had been a bully to others "sometimes" or more.

- Nearly one in five students in an average classroom is experiencing bullying in some way. The rest of the students, called bystanders, are also affected by the bullying.

Thank you so much for the excellent presentation yesterday. I have been to endless seminars, and unfortunately it is rare that I have come away with so much practical information, and food for thought.
